Worksheet for Chapter 11: Building Resilience Through Physical and Mental Wellness

Purpose: To help students apply concepts of physical and mental wellness to build resilience through self-reflection, habit tracking, scenario analysis, and actionable planning.

Part 1: Wellness & Resilience Reflection

Think about how your physical health and mental state connect to your ability to handle challenges. Answer the following questions honestly to assess where you stand.

- How do I feel physically most days (energy level, tiredness, etc.)?
- How does my physical state affect my mood or ability to deal with stress (like after a bad night's sleep or skipping meals)?
- What's one way I've noticed my emotional strength improve when I take care of my body (if any)?

Reflection Goal: Based on your answers, write one area of physical or mental wellness you want to focus on to boost your resilience.

Part 2: Habit Tracker Challenge

Let's build resilience with small, daily habits! Pick three habits from the list below (or create your own) related to exercise, sleep, and nutrition. Track them for the next 5 days by checking off when you complete them. At the end, reflect on how they impacted your energy or mood.

- Exercise Options: Walk 10 minutes, dance to 2 songs, do a quick stretch.
- Sleep Options: Set a bedtime alarm for 8 hours of rest, no screens 30 minutes before bed.
- Nutrition Options: Eat a fruit or veggie daily, drink water instead of soda for one meal.

Reflection After 5 Days: How did sticking to (or missing) these habits affect your resilience, mood, or stress levels?

Part 3: Burnout Check-In & Recharge Plan

Burnout can sneak up during busy or stressful times. Use this section to spot signs and plan how to recharge.

Step 1: Burnout Self-Check Circle any signs of burnout you've felt recently (refer to Chapter 11 for examples):

- Physical: Always tired / Headaches / Trouble sleeping / Getting sick often
- Emotional: Irritable or snappy / Feeling hopeless / Losing interest in things
- Behavioral: Avoiding tasks / Dropping grades / Pulling away from friends

Step 2: My Burnout Observations If you circled any signs, write down one or two specific examples (e.g., "I'm exhausted even after sleeping" or "I snapped at my friend for no reason"). If you didn't circle any, write "I feel okay right now" and move to Step 3.

Step 3: Recharge Action Plan Pick two recharge steps from Chapter 11 (like taking mini-breaks, doing something fun, or talking to someone) to try if you're feeling burned out—or to prevent it. Write how and when you'll do them.

Part 4: Scenario Analysis – Building Resilience in Action

Read the scenario below and use concepts from Chapter 11 to create a resilience plan.

Scenario: Finals Week Crunch It's finals week, and you've got three exams to study for, plus a group project presentation. You've been staying up late, skipping breakfast to cram, and haven't exercised in days. You're starting to feel exhausted, forgetful, and super stressed—classic burnout signs. On top of that, you're worried about letting your group down.

- Question 1: How could focusing on physical wellness (exercise, sleep, nutrition) help you build resilience to handle this stress? Write a specific plan for one habit you'd start.
- Question 2: What signs of burnout are you showing in this scenario, and what two recharge steps could you take to reset?
- Question 3: How would taking care of your body and mind help your emotional strength during finals week?

Part 5: Personal Resilience Wellness Pledge

Let's commit to building resilience through wellness! Create a short pledge to focus on one physical or mental wellness strategy from Chapter 11 over the next week. Be specific about what you'll do and why it matters to you.

- What I'll Do (Specific Action):
- Why It Matters to My Resilience:
- How I'll Track My Progress (e.g., journal, check-in with a friend):
