Worksheet for Chapter 5: Flexibility in Action: Adapting to New Situations

Instructions: Complete the following sections individually or in small groups. Use the space provided to write your answers, thoughts, and reflections. Be honest and creative—there are no wrong answers when it comes to exploring how you adapt! This worksheet is designed to help you apply the chapter's lessons to your own life.

Part 1: Reflect on Real-Life Adaptability (Section 1)

Goal: Connect the chapter's examples to your own experiences with adaptability.

- Personal Connection: Think of a time in your school life or personal life when you had to adapt to a sudden change (e.g., a canceled event, a tough group project, or a new rule at home). Describe what happened and how you handled it.
 - Situation:
 - How I Adapted:
 - Outcome (What Happened?):
- Inspired by Examples: Of the real-life stories in Chapter 5 (Mia's group project, Jayden's business pivot, or Simone Biles' Olympic decision), which one resonated with you the most, and why?
 - Story I Chose:
 - Why It Resonated:

Part 2: Try a Practical Exercise (Section 2)

Goal: Practice stepping out of your comfort zone to build flexibility skills.

- "Switch It Up" Challenge Commitment: Choose one small routine to change for the next 3 days (e.g., a different breakfast, a new way to school, or talking to someone new). Commit to it here, then reflect after trying it.
 - My Switch:
 - Day 1 Reflection (How It Felt):
 - Day 3 Reflection (What I Learned):
- Discomfort Mini-Dare: Pick one tiny "dare" to handle discomfort this week (e.g., asking a question in class, trying a new food, or speaking up in a group). Write down your plan and outcome.
 - My Dare:
 - How I Felt Doing It:

- What Happened:

Part 3: Apply Strategies for Sudden Changes (Section 3)

Goal: Test strategies to stay calm and focused when plans change unexpectedly.

- Practice the 5-4-3-2-1 Trick: Next time you face a sudden change or stressor (or right now if you're feeling stressed), try the 5-4-3-2-1 mindfulness trick (name 5 things you see, 4 you touch, 3 you hear, 2 you smell, 1 you taste). Document your experience.
 - Situation/When I Did It:
 - What I Sensed (List a few examples):
 - How I Felt After:
- Reframe a Recent Change: Think of a recent plan that changed (big or small). Use the reframing strategy to find a "hidden win" or positive angle.
 - Changed Plan:
 - Hidden Win I Found:
 - How This Changed My Perspective:

Part 4: Creative Expression & Fun Challenge

Goal: Engage with adaptability in a fun, imaginative way.

- Adaptability Avatar Creation: Imagine yourself as a video game character with "Flexibility" as your superpower. Design your avatar by answering the prompts below and, if you'd like, draw it in the space provided or on a separate sheet.
 - Character Name (e.g., "Flexi Finn"):
 - Signature Move for Adapting (e.g., "Quick Switch Spin"):
 - Describe Your Avatar's Look or Power (e.g., "Wears a cape that changes color with every challenge"):
 - (Optional) Draw your avatar here or attach a sketch. [Leave blank space for drawing or note to attach separately]
- Quick Poll for Class Discussion: If you could have one adaptability "superpower" in real life (e.g., instantly staying calm, always having a Plan B, or loving discomfort), what would it be and why?
 - My Chosen Superpower:
 - Why I Want It:

Part 5: Self-Assessment & Goal Setting

Goal: Reflect on your growth and set intentions for building flexibility.

- Rate Your Adaptability: On a scale of 1-5 (1 = I struggle with change, 5 = I adapt easily), how would you rate your current adaptability skills? Why did you choose this rating?
 - My Rating: ____ / 5
 - Reason for Rating:
- Set a Flexibility Goal: Based on this chapter and worksheet, set one specific goal for improving your adaptability over the next month (e.g., "I'll try one new thing each week" or "I'll use the 5-4-3-2-1 trick during stress").
 - My Goal:
 - How I'll Track Progress:
