Part 3: Scenario Decision-Making (10 minutes) Read each short scenario and choose the best action from the options provided. Circle your choice. No long writing—just pick and think!

- Scenario 1: You're writing an essay and find a great online article. You want to use a paragraph from it. What should you do? a) Copy it directly without citing since it's just one paragraph. b) Paraphrase it in your own words and include a proper citation. c) Ignore it to avoid any risk of plagiarism.
- Scenario 2: You're struggling with a solo assignment and a friend offers to write a section for you. What's the best response? a) Accept their help since you're stuck and need a good grade. b) Politely decline and seek help from a campus writing center instead. c) Let them write it but don't tell the professor to stay safe.
- Scenario 3: Your professor allows AI for brainstorming but not for writing essays. You used ChatGPT to get ideas. What should you do? a) Keep it a secret since it's just for ideas. b) Mention in a footnote or as instructed that you used AI for brainstorming. c) Avoid submitting the essay since AI was involved at all.

Quick Check: Discuss your choices with a peer or instructor. Correct choices (worth 2 points each, total 6 points): 1-b, 2-b, 3-b.

Part 4: Personal Commitment Checklist (5 minutes) Reflect on how you'll apply Chapter 3 concepts in Canada. Check off (✓) at least 3 commitments you'll make to succeed academically. No writing required—just think and commit!

- I will always cite sources when using others' ideas or words to avoid plagiarism.
- I will ask professors for permission before reusing any of my past work.
- I will contribute fairly in group projects and keep individual work solo.
- I will follow AI usage rules and be transparent if I use such tools.
- I will prepare specific questions before attending office hours.
- I will try to participate in class, even if it's just asking one question.

Quick Reflection: Look at your checked items. Which one feels most important to you right now? (No need to write—just think!)

Part 5: Role-Play Activity - Office Hours Practice (10 minutes) Objective: Build confidence in interacting with professors during office hours. How to Do It: Pair up with a peer. One person plays the role of a student visiting a professor during office hours with a specific concern (e.g., "I'm confused about the essay rubric"). The other plays the professor, offering guidance or asking clarifying questions. Focus on polite greetings, clear questions, and a thankful closing. Switch roles after 3-4 minutes. If working alone, practice aloud as if speaking to a professor. Quick Task: After the role-play, check off if you did the following (1 point each, total 3 points):

- Used a formal greeting (e.g., "Hello, Dr. Smith").
- Asked a specific question or stated a clear concern.
- Thanked the "professor" at the end.

Quick Reflection: How did it feel to ask for help or respond as a professor? (No writing needed—just discuss or think!)

Part 6: Group Work Brainstorm - Collaboration Planner (10 minutes) Objective: Practice planning fair collaboration for a group project. How to Do It: In small groups of 3-5 (or imagine a group if working alone), pretend you're assigned a project on "Canadian Cultural Values." Take 5 minutes to assign roles based on strengths (e.g., researcher, writer, presenter) and decide one rule for fair contribution (e.g., "Everyone must complete their task by the deadline"). If alone, list roles and a rule for yourself. Quick Task: Jot down your group's roles or rule in 1-2 sentences below (or just discuss if in a group). Worth 2 points for participation.

Quick Reflection: What was easy or hard about dividing tasks fairly? (No writing needed—just think or share with group!)

Part 7: Participation Prep - Question Generator (5 minutes) Objective: Build skills for classroom engagement by preparing questions. How to Do It: Imagine you're in a lecture about "Academic Integrity in Canada." Think of 2 questions you could ask the professor or classmates to show interest or clarify a concept (e.g., "What happens if I accidentally forget to cite a source?"). Write them below or just think of them if short on time. Quick Task: List your 2 questions (or just note you thought of them for 1 point each, total 2 points):

Quick Reflection: How does having prepared questions make participation easier? (No writing needed—just think!)
