Worksheet: Chapter 4 - Writing Short Stories

Purpose: This worksheet is designed to help students engage with the key concepts from Chapter 4, reflect on their understanding of short story writing, and apply the ideas of brainstorming, character creation, conflict building, and writing/revising. It includes a mix of reflective questions, creative prompts, and interactive activities tailored for teens to encourage personal expression and storytelling skills.

Part 1: Brainstorming Ideas for Short Stories

Objective: Practice generating creative ideas for short stories using techniques from the chapter.

- Quick "What If" Brainstorm (5 minutes): Write down 3 "What if" questions based on everyday teen life that could spark a short story idea. Example: "What if my group chat started predicting the future?"
- Idea Expansion: Pick your favourite "What if" question from above and expand it into a 3-sentence story idea. Include a main character and a hint of conflict. Chosen Question: _____

Part 2: Creating Relatable Characters and Dialogues

Objective: Develop characters with depth and write natural dialogue that reflects teen voices. 3. Character

Profile: Create a quick profile for a teen character for your short story. Fill in:

- Name: _____
- Goal/Want: _____
- Flaw or Fear: _____
- Quirk (small unique trait): _____
- Dialogue Practice: Write a short 5-6 line conversation between your character and a friend about their goal or fear. Use slang or casual language to make it sound like real teen talk.

Part 3: Building Conflict and Resolution in Stories

Objective: Craft a compelling conflict and resolution to drive a short story plot. 5. Conflict Creation: Using the character from Part 2, write 2-3 sentences describing an internal conflict (a fear or doubt inside them) and 2-3 sentences describing an external conflict (a person or situation blocking them). Internal Conflict:

External Conflict:

- Resolution Sketch: Write a 2-3 sentence resolution for your character's conflict. Decide if it's a win, a loss with growth, or a twist, and label your choice. Resolution Type (Win/Loss/Twist): _____

Part 4: Writing and Revising a Complete Short Story

Objective: Apply all chapter concepts to outline a short story and practice revision skills. 7. Story Outline: Plan a short story (500-1000 words) using your brainstormed idea and character from earlier parts. Fill in the basics below:

- Title (or Working Title): _____
- Hook (How will it start to grab attention?): _____
- Main Conflict (What's the big problem?): _____
- Key Moment (A big scene or turning point): _____
- Resolution (How will it end?): _____
- Mini-Draft: Write a 5-7 sentence draft of the beginning of your story (the hook and a hint of conflict). Focus on grabbing attention and showing your character's personality.
- Revision Practice: Read your mini-draft from above. Pick one thing to revise (e.g., stronger hook, better dialogue, vivid detail) using tips from Chapter 4. Rewrite those 1-2 sentences below and explain your change in 1 sentence. Revised Sentences:
