Worksheet for Chapter 5: Mental and Emotional Well-Being

Title: "Power Up Your Mental Health Squad!"

Grade Level: High School (Ages 13-18) Objective: To help students reflect on and apply key concepts from Chapter 5—understanding emotions, building self-esteem, strengthening social connections, and knowing when/how to seek help—through interactive, engaging activities tailored for Indian teens. Instructions: Hey, high school squad! This worksheet is your chance to level up your mental and emotional game. Complete each section honestly—there's no right or wrong, just real vibes. Use a pen, your phone notes, or even sketch if that's your thing. Let's dive in and own our well-being like bosses!

Part 1: Decode Your Emotions – What's Your Inner GPS Saying? Emotions are your inner signals, and naming them gives you control. Let's practice spotting and understanding your feels with a quick check-in inspired by the "3x3 Feelings Check" challenge from the chapter.

Activity: Think about your day so far (or yesterday if it's early). Pick THREE moments—one from the morning, one from midday, and one from the evening. For each, write down:

- What happened (super brief, like "had a maths test").
- How you felt (use specific words like "nervous," "hyped," "drained"—avoid just "good" or "bad").
- Why you think you felt that way (like "nervous 'cause I didn't study enough").

Example:

- Morning: Woke up late for school. Felt: Panicked. Why: Thought I'd miss the bus.
- Midday: Got picked for debate team. Felt: Stoked. Why: I worked hard for it.
- Evening: Fought with sibling over TV. Felt: Frustrated. Why: They wouldn't share.

Your Turn:

- Morning: _____ Felt: _____ Why: _____
- Midday: _____ Felt: _____ Why: _____
- Evening: _____ Felt: _____ Why: _____

Reflection (1-2 sentences): Did naming your emotions help you understand why you felt that way? How could this trick help you handle a tough moment next time?

Part 2: Hype Yourself Up – Build That Self-Esteem! Loving yourself is non-negotiable, even when socials or aunties try to mess with your vibe. Let's channel the "Hype Letter to Me" challenge from the chapter and remind yourself why you're a whole vibe!

Activity: Write a mini “Hype Note” to yourself with THREE things you genuinely like about who you are. Mix it up—include personality (like “I’m funny”), skills (“I’m killer at dance”), or a physical trait (“My smile rocks”). Then, pick ONE place to stick this note where you’ll see it daily (mirror, locker, phone wallpaper).

My Hype Note: Dear Me, you’re awesome because:

Where I’ll Stick It: _____

Reflection (1-2 sentences): How did it feel to write nice things about yourself? Do you think seeing this note daily could boost your confidence even a little?

Part 3: Squad Goals – Strengthen Your Support Crew! Your peeps are your mental health armor. Inspired by the “Squad Support” challenge, let’s focus on building those bonds with intention.

Activity: Pick ONE person in your life (friend, family, teammate) you want to connect with more deeply this week. Write down:

- Who they are and why you picked them (like “My bestie, they always get me”).
- ONE small way you’ll reach out (like “Text ‘you good?’” or “Grab chai after school”).
- When you’ll do it (specific day/time, like “Tomorrow after tuition”).

My Squad Plan:

- Person & Why: _____
- How I’ll Connect: _____
- When: _____

Reflection (1-2 sentences): Why do you think small actions like this can make your bond stronger? How might supporting them lift your mood too?

Part 4: Help Is Strength – Build Your Safety Net! Knowing when and where to seek help is a power move. Let’s create a personal “Emergency Support Plan” based on the chapter’s advice, so you’re ready for tough days.

Activity: Fill in the blanks to lock in your go-to support system, including Indian resources for relevance.

- Trusted Person: One person I can talk to if I’m struggling is _____ (name/relation). I trust them because _____. I’ll reach out by _____ (call, text, in-person).
- Backup Resource: One Indian helpline or website I can use if I need anon help is _____ (e.g., Vandrevala Foundation Helpline at 9999 666 555 or YourDost.com). I picked this because _____.
- Quick Self-Care Trick: If I’m feeling off, one thing I can do instantly to calm down is _____ (e.g., breathe for 10 seconds, play favourite song).

Reflection (1-2 sentences): How does having this plan make you feel about handling tough times? Do you think you’d use these resources if needed? Why or why not?

Part 5: Bonus Creative Challenge – Spread the Vibe! Let’s make mental health convos cool and real in your circle. Pick ONE way to share positivity or awareness inspired by the chapter:

- Option 1: Post a no-filter selfie or a pic of your “Hype Note” on socials with a caption like “Rocking my desi vibe #SelfHypeChallenge” to inspire your crew.
- Option 2: Share one tip from this chapter (like naming emotions) with a friend or family member and ask if they've tried it.

- Option 3: Sketch or doodle something that reps your mental health journey (like a shield for your squad or a stormy cloud for tough days) and show it to someone.

What I Did: I picked Option _____ and did this: _____ How It Felt:

Wrap-Up Reflection (2-3 sentences): What's the biggest thing you learned about mental and emotional well-being from this worksheet? Which activity felt most useful or fun, and why? How will you keep working on your mental health game this week?
