Worksheet for Chapter 7: Handling Feedback and Building Resilience

Instructions: Complete this worksheet to practice and apply the strategies discussed in Chapter 7. Use a notebook, digital document, or printout to write your answers. Share your responses with a friend, family member, or teacher for feedback if possible. Let's build your resilience and turn challenges into opportunities for growth!

Part 1: Receiving Constructive Criticism Gracefully

Objective: Practice accepting feedback without taking it personally, using it as a tool to improve.

- Feedback Response Practice Think of a recent time you received feedback (like on a school assignment or during a group activity). Answer the following:
 - What was the feedback, and how did you react at first (e.g., felt defensive, upset, or open)?
 - Did you listen fully, ask questions, or say thank you? If not, what could you have done differently?
 - Write a short script of how you'd respond if you got similar feedback again, including a "thank you" and a clarifying question.
- Feedback Role-Play Plan Imagine a teacher or coach gives you constructive criticism about a presentation (e.g., "You spoke too quickly, it was hard to follow"). Write how you'd respond in the moment to show you're open to their input. Include at least one question to understand their advice better.
 - My Response: _____
 - My Clarifying Question: _____

Part 2: Turning Rejection into Motivation

Objective: Learn to cope with setbacks by reframing rejection as a chance to grow and set new goals.

- Rejection Reflection Recall a time you faced rejection (e.g., didn't make a team, lost an election, or got turned down for a job). If you haven't experienced one, imagine a scenario. Answer these questions:
 - How did you feel at first, and how did you handle those emotions?
 - Did you ask for feedback or find a lesson in the experience? If not, what could you have done?
 - What's one positive action you took (or could take) after to move forward?
- Rejection Recovery Strategy Imagine you applied for a part-time job at a local café but didn't get it. Write a short plan with three steps:
 - Step 1: How you'll process the disappointment (e.g., talk to a friend, take a day to reset).
 - Step 2: A polite way to ask the manager for feedback on why you weren't selected.

- Step 3: One action you'll take based on possible feedback (e.g., gain a skill, adjust availability).

Part 3: Self-Reflection for Continuous Improvement

Objective: Build the habit of assessing your performance to identify strengths and areas for growth.

- Post-Event Reflection Think about a recent experience like a class presentation, mock interview, or group project. Use the three big questions to reflect:
 - What did I do well? (e.g., stayed calm, answered clearly)
 - What felt off or didn't go as planned? (e.g., forgot a point, seemed nervous)
 - What can I try next time to improve? (e.g., practice more, slow down)
- Goal-Setting After Reflection Based on your reflection above, set one specific, small goal for the next similar situation. Make it actionable (e.g., "I'll make eye contact with at least two people during my next speech"). Then, write how you'll track if you achieved it.
 - My Goal: _____
 - How I'll Track It: _____

Part 4: Personal Resilience Action Plan - Putting It All Together

Objective: Create a personalized strategy to build resilience across feedback, rejection, and self-reflection over time.

- My Resilience Game Plan Pick one strategy from each section of Chapter 7 (Receiving Feedback, Handling Rejection, Self-Reflection) that you'll commit to using in the next week or month. Write why you chose each and how you'll practice it.

- Feedback Strategy: _____ (Why? _____)

(How I'll Practice: _____)

- Rejection Strategy: _____ (Why? _____)

(How I'll Practice: _____)

- Self-Reflection Strategy: _____

(Why? _____) (How I'll Practice: _____)

Final Challenge: Pair up with a friend, sibling, or parent to role-play one scenario from each section:

- Receiving feedback on a pretend project (e.g., "Your poster looks messy, try organizing it better"). Practice listening and responding gracefully.
- Facing a mock rejection (e.g., "You didn't get the club spot"). Discuss how you'd feel and plan a next step together.
- Reflecting after a fake interview or speech. Share what went well and one thing to improve, and then set a mini-goal. Afterward, ask for feedback on how resilient and positive you seemed. Write down one piece of feedback you received and how you'll act on it.
- Feedback Received: _____
- How I'll Improve: _____

Note for Students: Keep this worksheet as a guide for building resilience in your daily life. Revisit and update your answers as you face new challenges in school, extracurriculars, or job applications. Remember, every piece of feedback, every rejection, and every moment of reflection is a chance to grow stronger. Handling these with grace and determination builds the kind of character that stands out in interviews and beyond. You've got this!
