MCQs

Question 1

During a group interview for a summer job at a local store, your team is tasked with creating a quick marketing plan. You have a great idea for a social media campaign, but you notice others are hesitant to speak up. What is the best way to contribute while being a team player?

- A) Explain your idea in detail and insist the group uses it since it's the best option.
- B) Share your idea briefly and invite input by saying, "I think a social media campaign could work—what do you all think, or do you have other ideas?"
- C) Stay quiet and let others take the lead, even if it means not sharing your idea at all.
- D) Tell the group you'll handle the marketing plan alone since no one else is contributing.

Correct Answer: B)

Share your idea briefly and invite input by saying, "I think a social media campaign could work—what do you all think, or do you have other ideas?"

Question 2

In a group project for history class, a teammate suggests focusing on a holiday from their culture that you've never heard of. Some group members seem unsure about including it. What's the most respectful and inclusive way to respond?

- A) Say, "That's interesting, but let's stick to something more common that everyone knows."
- B) Ask, "That sounds unique! Can you tell us more about it so we can see how to include it in our project?"
- C) Ignore the suggestion and move on to another topic to avoid any awkwardness.
- D) Tell them, "We don't have time to learn about that—let's pick something easier."

Correct Answer: B)

Ask, "That sounds unique! Can you tell us more about it so we can see how to include it in our project?"

Question 3

During a group project for science class, you and a teammate disagree on how to split the workload. They want to do less because they're busy, but you feel it's unfair. How should you handle this conflict professionally?

- A) Say, "That's not fair, you're just being lazy," and demand they do more.
- B) Use an "I" statement like, "I feel worried about the balance of work—can we discuss a way that feels fair to everyone?"
- C) Ignore the issue and do their share of the work yourself to avoid a fight.
- D) Tell the teacher immediately without talking to your teammate first.

Correct Answer: B)

Use an "I" statement like, "I feel worried about the balance of work—can we discuss a way that feels fair to everyone?"

Question 4

In a club meeting, your team is planning a fundraiser, and ideas are all over the place with no clear direction. What's the best way to show teamwork and leadership while helping the group focus?

- A) Take over the meeting and decide on a plan yourself since no one else is stepping up.
- B) Suggest, "Let's take turns sharing one idea each and then vote on the top two to focus on—does that work?"
- C) Stay silent and wait for someone else to organize the group, even if it takes longer.
- D) Criticize the group for being disorganized and tell them to get it together.

Correct Answer: B)

Suggest, "Let's take turns sharing one idea each and then vote on the top two to focus on—does that work?"
